

Andri Orphanides

Andri is the Director of API's Individual Certification Programs (ICP), where she has assisted in developing 14 new certification programs. She also developed ICP's IT infrastructure and facilitated the Programs' move to computer-based testing. In addition to managing ICP's 21 Certification programs, she works with various industry committees to explore strategic credentialing growth and development opportunities.

Andri received her Bachelor of Arts in Communications from George Mason University, specializing in production and marketing. She also holds a certificate as a Credentialing Specialist from the Institute for Credentialing Excellence. Andri is also a subject matter expert to ISO Workgroup 30.